

Summer energy savings start with simple cooling tips

Here are some simple steps you can take to help keep cooling costs down this summer.

- 1. Set the thermostat to 78°F or higher on your central air conditioner. Adjusting it from 72°F to 78°F can trim your cooling costs by up to 12%.
- 2. Clean or replace filters regularly so your air conditioner runs more efficiently.
- 3. Keep air vents free of obstructions, indoors and out, such as furniture and shrubs.
- 4. Weatherstrip and caulk drafty doors and windows to help keep cool air indoors.
- 5. Find and seal other air leaks, like gaps between walls and pipes.
- 6. Close window coverings to block direct sunlight. Consider solar shade screens, reflective films, awnings or shade trees for exposed windows.
- 7. Switch to fans when you can comfortably do so. Using a portable or ceiling fan to circulate air in one room costs about 4 cents per hour. Cooling your whole house with central air conditioning costs about $1 to $2 per hour, depending on your air conditioner's efficiency and other factors.

At work or play, stay safe outdoors

Whether you're working on a backyard project or relaxing with family and friends, outdoor activities are popular this time of year. For your own safety - and to help prevent power outages and fires - remember to:

- Keep Mylar balloons, kites, drones, remote-controlled planes and other objects away from power lines.
- Stay at least 10 feet clear of overhead electric lines and any equipment that carries an electric current.
- Never let anything you're touching, such as tools, machinery, a ladder or scaffolding, come in contact with electric lines.
- Keep off of power poles, transformer boxes and electric substation fences.
- Report downed power lines by calling 911 immediately.
